order for reading. Incomplete at end. The name of the author is regularly designated by a rubric before each poem. 135 historiated initials, 87 of which and a miniature have been cut out of the text.

This manuscript, the most comprehensive among the important manuscripts of the troubadours, is designated as ms. "B", Chansonnier toulousain, by Paul Meyer (Les derniers troubadours de la Provence, in Bibliothèque de l'Ecole des Chartes, vol. xxx (1869) p. 249) but more commonly quoted as ms. "C", following K. Bartsch in his census of manuscripts (Grundriss zur geschichte der provenzalischen literatur, 1872 p. 27 ff.). It includes 156 of the 460 poets noted by Bartsch and 1197 texts.

Written in the southwest of France, it appears to have remained in that region until the first part of the 17th century.

It was a part of the library of the Counts de Foix and of the Vicomtes de Béarn. After being the property of G. Catel who died in 1626 and later of his nephew, Jacques Pupinson, who died in 1631, the manuscript probably remained in Toulouse until it was purchased for the Mazarin library. After the death of Mazarin, it came into the possession of the Bibliothèque du roi.

Chantilly. Musée Condé. Mss. (472) [Nine romances of the Round table] ... (Card 2)

Deposited in the Library of Congress by the M. L. A. Committee on the reproduction of manuscripts and rare printed books.
Collation of the original (a 13th cent. ms. on vellum) based on the facsimile, which omits fol. 56 (torn out of the original) and fol. 153A^{v} (blank): 263 folios remaining (numbered 1-55, 57-203, 203bis-217, 217bis-231, 231^{b}-260, in a modern hand; a small leaf inserted later as 153A) 20×30^{cm}. Signatures marked in a modern hand, A-Z, Aa-Kk, very irregular. Copied, probably entire, by the scribe Colins li Fruitiers (cf. fol. 122^{r}), who apparently introduced fol. 252 at the wrong point; a second number for this as "261" suggests its proper location. The poetry in triple columns, the prose in double columns. Illuminated initials. Known to have been in the Hôtel Condé in 1654. Held at Twickenham, England, ca.
